Meet the Confirmands

Jonas Robert Kinsler

Jonas' birthday is December 30th. His parents are Cyndi and Richard Kinsler. Jonas has three sisters and two brothers: Josie, Jovia, and Johanna, Joseph, and Job.

He also has several pets: three cats named Samuel, KK, and Clark, a dog named Amadeus, two birds (an African Cockatiel and a grey Parrott), as well as a collection of rodents (four guinea pigs and 12 rats). Jonas is an 8th grader at Upper Perkiomen Middle School. His favorite subjects are Science and Gym (particularly kick-ball). A couple of his favorite activities outside of school are computer programming and website design. His favorite team is the U.S. Olympic Swim Team and his favorite athlete is Michael Phelps. Jonas enjoys music, plays several instruments (baritone sax, viola, trumpet, piano, mountain dulcimer), and is in both the orchestra and the band at school. Even though Jonas doesn't have a favorite musical group, or a favorite book, or a favorite TV show, his favorite movies are the James Bond films, and Daniel Craig is his favorite 007. Some other things that might help you know Jonas a little better: he lives on a farm with lots of poultry; he takes care of the cats and chickens more than the turkeys and the ducks; he gets paid for cleaning; volunteers at SLHC on Thursdays and on weekends; and he is taking German classes from Allen Viehmeyer.

For nearly 40 years, The Schwenkfelder Church was a fervent supporter of a mission in China... of Schwenkfelder missionary Flora Heebner in Shansi province...

member of the church during that time. These mission highlights are extracted from the November, 1914 Schwenkfeldian.

The Shansi Mission was established by a group of Oberlin College graduates in 1882. The work increased steadily and by 1900, eighteen missionaries including four children were on the field. In this same year the Boxer rebellion sought to exterminate Christians and Christianity from China. Fourteen of the eighteen missionaries were killed and the remaining four would have suffered a like fate had they not been away on furlough. The Oberlin community was profoundly moved on hearing of the destruction of the "New Oberlin" in China. Miss Flora K. Heebner then a student in Oberlin and a Student Volunteer for the Foreign Field, was stirred deeply as she heard from two refugee native Chinese of Shansi studying at Oberlin.

The re-growth of the mission since its destruction in 1900 was rapid. Four years after the bloody rebellion, the church in Shansi had already doubled its membership. The Chinese schools of eight counties of Shansi were taken over by the mission at the Government's request. The hospitals in two mission stations were enlarged and busy with patients. Kindergartens for the children and adult women's classes fulfilled a strategic service. The literati—the learned class of the province, gave their official sanction to the educational and health care work carried on by the Mission. It was a timely service at this time that the Schwenkfelders rendered in making possible a home for the single women of the Mission in Tai Ku, Shansi province.

The idea of a home for single women missionaries began at the annual meeting of the Mission Board in Norristown, April 22, 1913. It was moved by Rev. Levi S. Hoffman and seconded by Mr. William K. Heebner, "that the sum of $1,000.00, bequeathed by

... "that the sum of $1,000.00... be given... for the erection of a house in Tai Ku Hsien, Shansi, China, for the missionary of our Church, Miss Flora K. Heebner and the single women of the Mission associated with her."

the late William Y. Meschter to the Mission Board of the Schwenk-

felder Church, be given to the Woman's Board of Missions for the Interior, of the American Board, for the erection of a house in Tai Ku Hsien, Shansi, China, for the missionary of our Church, Miss Flora K. Heebner and the single women of the Mission associated with her." The motion was carried unanimously. The result of this motion was the completion of the new house for Miss Heebner in 1914, at a cost of $3,500.00.

A letter was received from Miss Heebner in which she rejoices at the completion of the house, giving her for the first time since her coming to China in the fall of 1904, a "sure dwelling place." A photo sent by Miss Heebner shows that the house was commodiously and substantially built, in accordance with the policy of the American Board, who in the 103 years of experience in mission work in foreign lands, recognized the wisdom of safeguarding the health of their missionaries. They estimated that the house will stand "at least 100 years." The framed picture of William Y. Meschter, whose bequest made this project possible, hung in a conspicuous place in the new house, a lasting tribute to this generous Christian gentleman.

Miss Heebner writes, "It was a big surprise to learn that the late W. Y. Meschter had left a legacy to our Mission Board, and later that this same legacy was to be the nucleus of our Taiku single women's house. It is the policy of our American Board to put up good sized, and commodious houses, for sometimes they are almost made to serve the purpose of institutions. They need to have room enough to take in families sometimes. And when a growing work like Fenshow and Taiku constantly demands more single women Missionaries it seemed the part of wisdom to build for the future. All through the summer of 1914 and into the winter they worked. Rains were copious before the roof was on and we wondered whether it ever would dry out when finished. The carpenters finished their work through the winter and this past summer the painters have done theirs, so that now we are moving into it. I am so glad the house is built, that it is as big as it is, and that from henceforth the single women shall have a home and be no longer mistakenly taken for the second wives of the Missionary in whose family they have happened to be in."
